THE EASTS SYMPOSIUM

The EASTS Symposium focusing on "Future Direction of Airport Investment and Air Transport Network in Asia" was held on 14 September 2002 in Fukuoka and attended by more than 300 participants. This symposium was planned as a pre-event of the next EASTS conference to be held in Fukuoka.

In the panel discussion, Dr. Cheng-Min Feng of the Chinese Institute of Transportation pointed out the inefficient aspects of hub-airport competition and the necessity of complementary role among existing airports. Dr. Kyong Soo Chon of Seoul National University expressed his apprehension of excessive airport investment. Dr. Tetsuo Yai of Tokyo Institute of Technology proposed an alternative strategy, which is the effective use of small-scale jet planes.

The discussion drew great interest from the audience especially that Fukuoka is planning for a new international airport.
