

events can produce significant site-specific or even regional impacts such as severe traffic congestion or transit overcrowding.

REFERENCES

- Ben-Akiva, M., Lerman, S.R. (1985) Discrete Choice Analysis: Theory and Application to Travel Demand. Cambridge, MA: MIT Press.
- Chang, M.S., Lu, P.R. (2013a) A multinomial logit model of travel mode choice for planned special events, Paper presented at the 2013 Annual Symposium on Management, Operations Research and Economics, Taipei, Taiwan, January 9-11.
- Chang, M.S., Lu, P.R. (2013b) A nested logit model of travel mode choice for planned special events. Paper presented at the 2013 International Conference on Innovation and Management, Sapporo, Japan, January 28-31.
- Day, N. (2008) The Joint Modelling of Trip Timing and Mode Choice, Master Thesis, Department of Civil Engineering, University of Toronto, Canada.
- FHWA (2007) Managing Travel for Planned Special Events Handbook: Executive Summary, FHWA-HOP-07-108, Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation, Washington D.C.
- FHWA (2009) Planned Special Events: Cost Management and Cost Recovery Primer, FHWA-HOP-09-028, Federal Highway Administration, Department of Transportation, Washington D.C.
- Hunt, J.D., Patterson, D.M. (1996) A stated preference examination of time of travel choice for a recreational trip. Journal of Advanced Transportation, 30(3), 17-44.
- Kuppam, A., Livshits, V., DeBoer, K. (2010) Innovative methods to collecting data for special events and modeling travel related to special events, Paper presented at the 3rd Conference on Innovations in Travel Modeling, Tempe AZ, USA, May 9-12.
- Pozsgay, M.A., Bhat, C.R. (2001) Destination choice modeling for home-based recreational trips. Transportation Research Record, 1777, 47-54.
- Steed, J.L., Bhat, C.R. (2000) On modeling departure-time choice for home-based social/recreational and shopping trips. Transportation Research Record, 1706, 152-159.
- Tringides, C.A. (2004) Alternative Formulations of Joint Model Systems of Departure Time Choice and Mode Choice for Non-Work Trips, Master Thesis, University of South Florida.
- Yue, J., Cheng, T., Tai, M. (2009) Demand forecasting of parking lot based on discrete choice model in planned special events. Proceeding of the International Conference on Management and Service Science, 1-4.