

expected to support the conclusion of this study, by interviewing citizens and drivers, and modeling the relationship among factors.

REFERENCES

- Beijing Transportation Research Center (2011): Urban road traffic performance index, Beijing Municipal Administration of Quality and Technology Supervision.
- Cleland, F. and Cooper, T. (2003): TDM In Europe: A Synthesis of Research Findings, Center for Urban Transportation Research, University of south Florida
- Fujii, S. (2001), TDM and Social Dilemmas: The Role of Public Spirits in Solving Transport Problems. Journal of Japan Society of Civil Engineering, 667 (IV-50), 41-58. (in Japanese)
- JSTE Workshop for Traffic Demand Management. (1999), Pearls of Wisdom for Easing Traffic Congestion. Japan Society of Traffic Engineers, Tokyo. (in Japanese)
- Liu, K. (1985): On the way to solve traffic problems in Beijing, Urban Issues. (in Chinese)
- Li Q. et al (2003): Behavior modification needs adjustment - oriented the Olympic traffic demand management research, planning and construction. (in Chinese)
- Ministry of Public Security (2008) Beijing 2008 Olympic and Paralympic Games in Beijing during transport security programs. (in Chinese)
- Quarter, J. (2009): Evaluation of the model with the spatial structure of the Beijing urban public traffic satisfaction of Geographical Science, Acta Geographica Sinica. (in Chinese)
- Suyue, L. et al (2009): Beijing traffic demand management strategy based on odd and even number of measures to limit analysis, traffic information and safety, 2009 (in Chinese)
- Suyue, L. et al (2009): The 2008 Summer Olympics in Beijing during transportation demand management strategy analysis, The 2009 cross-strait intelligent transport system Symposium (in Chinese)
- Wen, H., Hu, Z. and Sun, J. (2010): Road Traffic Performance Monitoring in Beijing, The 6th Advanced Forum on Transportation of China.
- Zhang X. and Wen Z. (2001): The role of transportation demand management solutions to urban transport problems, Liaoning Police Academy. (in Chinese)
- Zhou H. and Xu J. (2003): Metropolitan transportation Demand Management Research, Urban planning, (in Chinese)